

“BOOJUM”

Robert is a self-employed sculptor and ceramicist. He has been piloting balloons for over 20 years and is past president of NOBPA Club. He has flown over 586 hours. Rob's balloon is so named for a mythical creature invented by writer Lewis Carroll of Alice in Wonderland fame, if you catch one, you disappear, "luckily my crew is usually immune." His most memorable moment is hard to pick, but one was flying over Northern Germany in the summer of 1986. This will be Rob's 9th Classic. He has several awards from NOBPA. His balloon is black with red, yellow, blue, pink & green horizontal bands.
